

Removing the rainfall input changes nothing

100% = no skill lost when the flood type changes

Values above 100% are the paradox, not a success: the model scores higher on a flood type it never saw, while predicting far too much water.